

CURUFC PLAYERS' CODE OF CONDUCT

CURUFC teams are highly visible to participants in the game and supporters of it. Below are what we believe to be the minimum standards expected while you are a member of CURUFC. How you behave on the field of play is governed by the Laws of the Game but the following Standards of Behaviour are in place to provide the same expectation of discipline for off the field. These are more than suggestions; there are behaviours that we expect of you and that if contravened will be deemed a breach of the Code of Rugby, now enshrined in the RFU regulations.

The details below cover as many eventualities as possible but if something is not covered then the overarching standard is that "You should at all times act and behave in a manner which maintains or enhances the public reputation of Cambridge University RUFC and the RFU."

Any breach will be dealt with by the CURUFC Committee and sanctions on the offending player may be imposed.

(a) MEDICAL

You only participate in rugby sessions if you consider yourself physically and mentally capable of safely taking part, and if you have any injuries, illnesses or long-term conditions, you have sought medical advice and are not participating against this advice. You understand that CURUFC and its coaches will make their best endeavours to accommodate disabled performers (under the Disability Discrimination Act) within practical reasonableness. You have honestly and openly completed the medical information section of the registration form, including any head injuries or accidents resulting in unconsciousness that you have had within the past six months. You will inform the coach in charge at each session of any medical condition, injury or medication that may in any way affect your ability to participate in the sport. You give consent that in the event of illness or accident during a session, any necessary treatment can be administered. If surgery is necessary this may include the use of anaesthetics. The club reserves the right to request further information/medical approval to ensure that participation would not cause adverse effects on the participant's health.
